800 AT RECEPTION FOR POSTMASTERS

Garden at Executive Mansion Is Scene of Interesting Hospitality.

PRESENTS GUESTS

Members of Cabinet and Their Wives and Miss Wilson Hold Informal Courts.

The lovely garden at the White House was the scene of an interesting hospitality yesterday afternoon, when the President and Mrs. Wilson entertained at a reception in honor of the postmasters who are entertaining the convention in Washington this week and the mem-bers of their families accompanying them. The few official folk yet remaining in town were present and assisted in welcoming the 800 or more guests.

The President and Mrs. Wilson received together under a great tree on the south lawn, Col. W. W. Harts making the presentations, and after the guests had passed on they were greeted by the Postmaster General and Mrs. Burleson. The Secretary of War and Mrs. Baker, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Danlels, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Redfield, and the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Wilson, and the President's eldest daughter, Miss Margaret Wilson, each held an informal court under the trees.

Distinguished Guests.

Among the other distinguished guests were Mrs. Thomas Riley Marshall, wife of the Vice President, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Kimsey; the Attorney General, Mr. Gregory; Mr. Lane, the Secretary of the Interior: Miss Agnes Hart Wilson, the counsellor of the State Department, Mr. Polk, and Dr. and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson. The three young children of the Secretary of War and Mrs. Baker, grouped on the south portico of the Executive Mansion, took a keen interest in the attractive scene.

Ices and other refreshmetns were served from a long table, gay with stood at the west end of the grounds, and paims and tall sheaves of gladiol decorated the collonade leading from the garden to the east entrance. The Marine Band played during the entire

Mrs. Wilson wore a handsome gown of gray taffets and georgette crepe, with a very bouffant skirt, and a hat of gray tulle and taffets trimmed with or gray tune and tarreta trimmed with gray plumes. A corsage bouquet of mauve orchids and a graceful ostrich feather fan completed a costume at once becoming and appropriate. The President in an immaculate white flon-hel suit presented a distinguished fig-ure. Mrs. Marshall was gowned in flesh colored voile, very simply made, and mounted en flesh colored silk. Her white hat was trimmed with gardenias.

Miss Wilson's Gown.

Miss Margaret Wilson wore a dainty trock of cream colored georgette crepe, of lace veiled in crepe. Her hat was of turquoise blue chiffon, veiled in black net and faced with black satin which brought out the gold in her blonde hair. Small pink roses formed the only trimming and she had a cluster of pink mosee tucked in her belt.

Mrs. Burleson were a dainty gown of cream and black net, made with flowing sleecees, cut slightly low in the neck and finished with black veulvet and missied with black streamers.

Mrs. Daniels was in a handsome gown of white embroidered mull trimmed with valenciennes insertion worn with a white milan hat wreathed with white

Mrs. Redfield's Costume. Mrs. Redfield wore a costume of black and white voile embroidered with garlands of tiny pink rosebuds and a white hat finished with a cluster of pink roses. Mrs. Baker wore a gown made on Russian mlouse lines of white crepe de chine and white georgette crepe finished with a belt of graduated rings of white ivory, A white chiffon hat trimmed with a box plaiting of white tulle completed her costume.

Mrs. William B. Wilson was in white linen with a small black hat trimmed with a flat band of white feathers about the crown.

Miss Agnes Hart Wilson wore a be-coming gown of white georgette crepe combined with corn-colored taffeta and a drooping leghorn hat trimmed with lilacs.

Mrs. Grayson worn an effective gown of pale pink georgette crepe trimmed with pin tucks and a lace straw hat faced with rose chiffon. President's Guests At Theater.

9 DAYS TO OBEY LAW

All Must Comply With Compulsory Sewer Tap Act or Pay Heavy Fine.

ALEXANDRIA, July 22.—But nine days remain for residents who have failed to make sewer connections to comply with the regulations as Alexandria's compulsory sewer tap law, which technically has been in effect for several years, will be in full force after August 1, and the authorities are preparing to summon every person into court who fails to comply with its provisions.

The law provides that all property owners whose residences or places of business are on a street where there is a sewer shall make the necessary connection. Delinquents are subject to a heavy fine.

BOY SCOUTS TAKE SHARK PRECAUTION

Swimming at Camp Archibald But Permited in Enclosure

The executive board of the local Boy Scout council has decided to prohibit any bathing at camp Archibald Butt except within the enclosure. This caution was taken on account of reports from Annapolis that a shark had been seen in the river there. The had been seen in the river there. The committee announced, however, that arrangements would be made at Chesapeake Beach for exhibition swimming opposite the bathhouse.

Several workmen at the naval experiment station at Annapolis last night declared that they saw a large ten-foot shark in the Severn early yesterday afternoon. They were returning to their work in a launch, and declare that a shark followed in their wake for a considerable distance. As soon as they neared the other side of the river the shark disappeared.

Reports that sharks were seen near Riverside, at the mouth of the Wicomica river, have not been confirmed. Schools of porpoises play in those waters at this time of the year, and it is likely that this fish was mislabeled shark by ignorant landsmen, sailors familiar with the vicinity insist.
